A GUIDE TO

PAINTING CALIPERS

JIMMY SHOWS US...

IF THIS MOD IS ACCEPTED BY THE 'OL PIMP JUICE ON HIS WICKED WRC PUG 307, IT MUST BE WORTHWHILE!

Now this is a pretty damn easy mod to carry out on your beloved ride, whatever that may be.

You may have noticed that most of the more expensive cars on the market come from the factory with coloured brake calipers. We're not talking top of the range Beemers here, we're talking Porsches and Ferrari and other supercar type rides. Then when you get heavily modded cars from major tuning shops, their brake calipers are also coloured, mostly because they fit their project cars with Brembo or Tarox calipers or something similar but still extremely expensive. Well now if you want the same look, you're lucky, you don't have to splash out any cash on a supercar and you don't have to fork out heaps at a tuning shop for a caliper upgrade either. Instead you can go through to the guys at Autostyle and hook yourself up with some of their new caliper paint. An hour or two at your spot and you can have your standard, although small, calipers all red and fancy and shit. Now when you're walking towards your car with a couple of mates they'll be able to see your awesome brakes and if they comment, you can tell the stupid idiots that you've done a recent Brembo upgrade. You can keep the cheap paint mod to yourself and be the only one on the block with it!

PRODUCT OVERVIEW

PRICE: R250

QUALITY: Excellent 9/10

APPLICATION: Easy 9/10

PRO'S: Great kit, comes with everything you need to paint calipers. Can be used for other high-heat applications.

CON'S: We found that half the brake cleaner had evaporated in the sealed packaging, not a major issue though.
